Therapeutic Consent and Client Contract

Please read the following policies carefully. If you have any questions or concerns, please discuss them with your therapist before signing below.

Notice of Privacy Practices

When one receives care for mental health and/or substance abuse, information related to that care might be more protected than other types of health information. Communications with a therapist in treatment are privileged and may not be disclosed without your written permission, except as required by law. The following are situations in which a mental health professional is required by law to reveal information obtained during therapy to other persons or agencies without the client's permission: (a) If a client threatens bodily harm or death to him/herself or to another person; (b) If a court of law issues a legitimate court order (signed by a judge), the practicing therapist will be required by law to provide the information specifically described in that order; (c) If a client reveals information relative to child abuse, child neglect, or elder abuse (past or present). Also, (a) If a client presents to therapy by order of a court of law, the results of the treatment ordered must be revealed to the court; (b) If any sexual improprieties by a former therapist are reported, the therapist must report this to the state licensing board; (c) If any sexual improprieties by clergy are reported, the therapist must report this to the district attorney; (d) If a client is seeking reimbursement through an insurance company, it will be necessary to reveal confidential information to them; (e) Banks and credit card companies may be made aware that a person is receiving services from OBFT due to check or credit card processing; (f) If a client files a complaint or malpractice suit against a therapist, the therapist reserves the right to use his or her records to defend him or herself in court. A client's records may also be used to sue for delinquent payment.

Protection of client confidentiality is of utmost importance. At Olive Branch Family Therapy we uphold the highest standards for guarding your personal information. A client's personal, written consent is required should the need arise for one's information or records to be shared for any other reason than those required by law as stated above.

Duty to Warn

In the event that the undersigned therapist reasonably believes that I am a danger physically, to myself or another person, I specifically consent for the therapist to warn the person in danger and to contact the following persons, in addition to medical and law enforcement personnel. Limits on Confidentiality when Providing Therapy to Couples or Families

This written policy is intended to inform you, the participants in therapy, that when I agree to treat a couple or a family, I consider that couple or family (the treatment unit) to be the patient. For instance, if there is a request for the treatment records of the couple or the family, I will seek the authorization of all members of the treatment unit before I release confidential information to third parties. Also, if my records are subpoenaed, I will assert the psychotherapist-patient privilege on behalf of the patient (treatment unit).

During the course of my work with a couple or a family, I may see a smaller part of the treatment unit (e.g., an individual or two siblings) for one or more sessions. These sessions should be seen by you as a part of the work that I am doing with the family or the couple, unless otherwise indicated. If you are involved in one or more of such sessions with me, please understand that generally these sessions are confidential in the sense that I will not release any confidential information to a third party unless I am required by law to do so or unless I have your written authorization. In fact, since those sessions can and should be considered a part of the treatment of the couple or family, I would also seek the authorization of the other individuals in the treatment unit before releasing confidential information to a third party.

However, I may need to share information learned in an individual session (or a session with only a portion of the treatment unit being present) with the entire treatment unit – that is, the family or the couple, if I am to effectively serve the unit being treated. I will use my best judgment as to whether, when, and to what extent I will make disclosures to the treatment unit, and will also, if appropriate, first give the individual or the smaller part of the treatment unit being seen the opportunity to make the disclosure. Thus, if you feel it necessary to talk about matters that you absolutely want to be shared with no one, you might want to consult with an individual therapist who can treat you individually.

This “no secrets” policy is intended to allow me to continue to treat the couple or family by preventing, to the extent possible, a conflict of interest to arise where an individual’s interests may not be consistent with the interests of the unit being treated. For instance, information learned in the course of an individual session may be relevant or even essential to the proper treatment of the couple or the family. If I am not free to exercise my clinical judgment regarding the need to bring this information to the family or the couple during their therapy, I might be placed in a situation where I will have to terminate treatment of the couple or the family. This policy is intended to prevent the need for such a termination.

Informed consent for Telephone, Electronic, and Mail Contact

I understand communication through telephone, and other electronic means is not completely confidential to the extent that spyware and other dangerous hardware can gain access to protected material. I also understand text messages and emails will be kept in a password-protected account to which only my OBFT therapist has access. I trust my therapist will handle my private information respectfully and with care in order to protect my confidentiality. It is recommended that clients keep electronic communication brief and vague. Please do not write any information in an email which you would not want others to know. Email is best used for appointment-setting, initiating a phone call, or asking questions about Olive Branch Family Therapy and it’s therapists.

The Client-Therapist Relationship

The ethical code of marriage and family therapists prohibits dual relationships between clinician and patient. This means a therapist cannot engage with a client in any social occasion or through social media. Therapists and clients also may not be involved in any business activities other than providing psychotherapeutic services. In order to further protect client confidentiality, the therapist will not acknowledge past or current clients in public unless the client first initiates the conversation.
This prevents clients from being unwillingly put in a position to explain his or her relation to the therapist if asked by a nearby person.

Fees and Protocol Specifically Related to Legal Proceedings and Court Involvement

Please be advised that should the therapists of Olive Branch Family Therapy be requested to write a letter on any court-related matter, they will not be stipulating in writing, or in person, as to an opinion. Therapists may only provide observations and feedback. At no time will any therapists of Olive Branch Family Therapy make a recommendation in regards to custody or any other court related matter. If a court order is served and is requesting that a therapist of Olive Branch Family Therapy be present in person and/or there is a request for records, the client’s consent will be requested before turning over confidential information. Furthermore, the therapist will be unable to disclose any information pertaining to other family members or involved parties in counseling without each person’s own specific consent. Upon obtaining consent, the client will be told exactly what has been requested by court and that there is no guarantee that, once released, the information will be kept confidential by the recipient. This includes a client’s mental health history, current status, session notes and any inclusive records which, in their release, may or may not be in the best interest of the client. The client-therapist relationship does not render the therapist as an advocate for the client. The therapist will withhold any opportunity to engage in a dual relationship with the client throughout the court proceedings. After representing a client in court, a therapist may be ethically obligated to terminate the client-therapist relationship due to conflict of interest. In such case the therapist will make an appropriate referral to another suitable mental health professional.

Please be advised that should a therapist from Olive Branch Family Therapy be ordered by court to write a letter to the court, the time shall be billed at $200 per hour.

Please be advised that should a therapist from Olive Branch Family Therapy be court ordered to appear in court, the fee stipulation is as follows:

- $2,000 per day plus $200 per hour for travel to and from the court.
- $200 per hour for preparation
Therapists of Olive Branch Family Therapy will not be on-call for court. Should a case be trialed, or continued, the therapist will be paid in full for each day as well as an additional $1,000 per day as it hinders the therapist’s or intern’s ability to be available to their other clients.

All court fees must be received by cashier’s check 7 days prior to the court date. Should the court calendar the hearing for another date, the therapist must be re-issued a new subpoena with the new court hearing date. Should the therapist be on vacation, the party initiating the court order must take reasonable steps to avoid imposing undue burden or expense on a person subject to the subpoena.

By signing and dating below, I indicate that I understand and agree to the above stated court policy and stipulation, including but not limited to the fee structure for all related court matters. Initial ____

I authorize Olive Branch Family Therapy to charge the amounts listed above to the credit card provided by me to pay for fees incurred regarding court involvement and legal proceedings. I agree to pay for these purchases in accordance with the issuing bank cardholder agreement.
